20 Best small companies to work for REPORT ON (SMALL) BUSINESS

The Globe and Mail, in partnership with Queen's Centre for Business Venturing and Hewitt Associates, a global human resources outsourcing and consulting firm, conducted the third annual survey to find out Canada's best small and medium employers.

The process began last spring when more than 120 companies from across the country registered for the study. Each employer received a detailed and confidential questionnaire to be distributed among its employees. For the most part, the rankings here reflect the responses from that questionnaire. Other factors taken into consideration include information about the company's leaders, how closely their goals and that of workers are aligned, and whether workplace practices and programs reinforce the employer's vision.

For more information, including instructions on how to participate in the 2008 Best Small and Medium Employers in Canada survey, log on to www.business.queensu.ca/qcbv/sme or call 1-877-955-1800. To qualify as a small or medium-sized employer, the company must have at least 50 and no more than 400 full-time or full-time-equivalent employees.

TRISH McALASTER/THE GLOBE AND MAIL

"It doesn't matter what role you play, your work, your opinions and your time are greatly valued. I am very proud to have worked for Lutherwood for all these years, and I look forward to continuing to serve the individuals and families who come to Lutherwood for assistance."

Wendy Winger
IT Applications Support Specialist

"An organization is only as good as its people and Lutherwood has some of the most talented, compassionate and dedicated individuals I have ever had the privilege to work with. These people come to work every day knowing that they are making a difference in the lives they touch."
